

TURN YOUR OFFER INTO A BOT SALES PITCH

Turn Your Offer into a Bot Sales Pitch

How to Sell Smarter (Not Harder) with AI ChatBot Master

Got a product or service to sell?

Your bot can do the heavy lifting - introduce your offer, explain the benefits, answer objections, and guide people to buy... all while you focus on other things.

In this mini report, you'll learn how to turn your offer into a chatbot-friendly sales pitch using your AI Chatbot Master platform.

Let's make your bot your best salesperson!

What Makes a Great Chatbot Sales Pitch?

It's not about pushing—it's about guiding the customer to see the value of your offer.

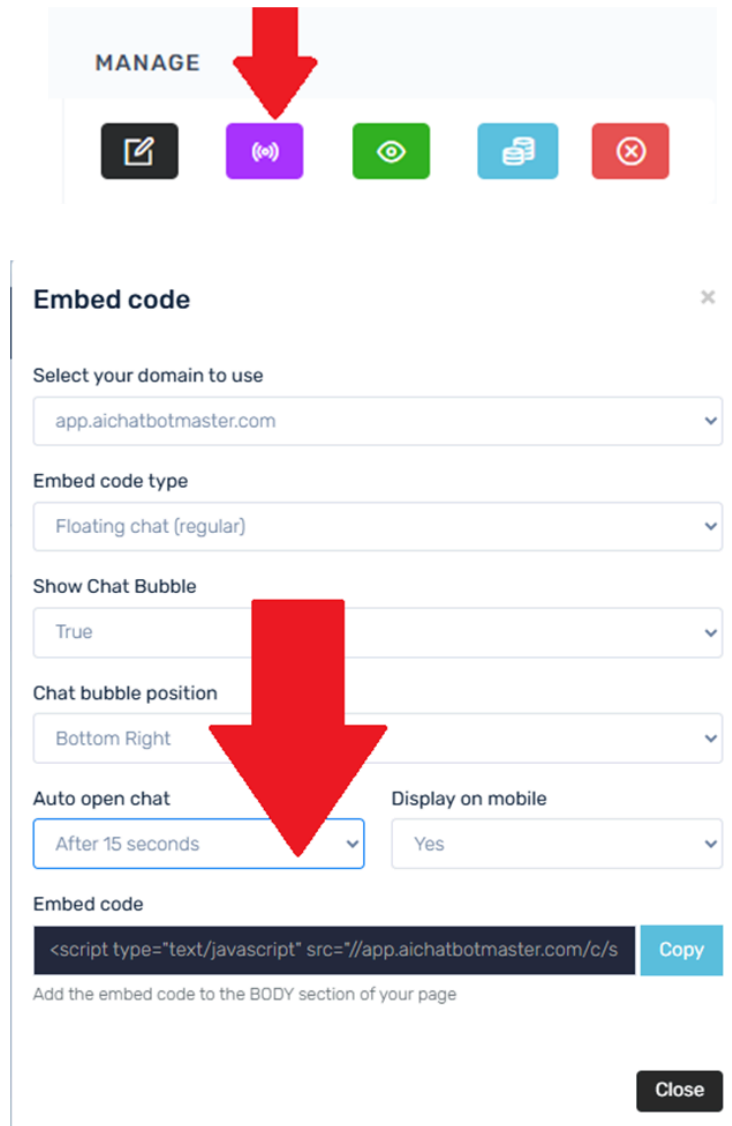

A chatbot pitch should:

- Be short and simple
- Focus on benefits, not features
- Ask questions to keep things interactive
- Handle common objections
- Offer a clear next step (like "Buy Now" or "Book a Call")

Step-by-Step: Create a Sales Pitch Chat Flow

You can build this right inside AI ChatBot Master in a few easy steps. Simply create and upload to your database an objection question sheet with sales responses you like the bot to use. Additionally complete the Force Topic tab to instruct the bot.

Step 1: Set your bot to open chat automatically

The screenshot displays the 'MANAGE' tab in the AI ChatBot Master interface. Below the tab are five icons: a pencil (edit), a speaker (voice), an eye (visibility), a document (script), and a red circle with an 'X' (delete). A large red arrow points from the 'MANAGE' tab to the 'Embed code' configuration panel below.

The 'Embed code' panel contains the following settings:

- Select your domain to use: app.aichatbotmaster.com
- Embed code type: Floating chat (regular)
- Show Chat Bubble: True
- Chat bubble position: Bottom Right
- Auto open chat: After 15 seconds
- Display on mobile: Yes

The 'Embed code' section shows the following code:

```
<script type="text/javascript" src="//app.aichatbotmaster.com/c/s
```

A 'Copy' button is next to the code. Below the code, it says: 'Add the embed code to the BODY section of your page'. A 'Close' button is at the bottom right.

Step 2: Start with a Hook (Grab Attention)

Displayed in the header of the chat, is a section to add a short description opening. This can be used as an introduction.

Use a friendly message that piques interest:

Hey there! Looking to [solve a problem]? I've got something that might help!

Step 3: Introduce the Offer (Keep It Short)

Here's the deal: I created [your product/service name] to help people just like you [insert big benefit].

Want a sneak peak?

Step 4: Show the Benefits

Highlight how your offer helps—keep it focused on what the user gets.

Ask:

"Sound like something that could help your business?"

Step 5: Handle Objections Gently

Anticipate doubts and ease them with friendly messaging.

Not sure if this is for you? Totally fair.

You don't need to be techy, and you can start free. I'll walk you through it step-by-step.

Or:

"Still on the fence? Most of our users say they were surprised how easy it was."

Step 6: Make a Clear, Friendly Offer

This is where you guide them to take action.

Ready to give it a shot?

You can try it free, no strings attached. Want the link to get started?

Or if it's a paid offer:

Want to grab it now? It's just £27 and comes with a 7-day guarantee. Click below to grab your copy

Or offer a discount code to encourage immediate action:

As a special offer, if you order now I can give you a 10% discount against the regular price showing on the website right now. Use coupon code 12345 on the order form.

Use the A.I.D.A. Formula

Here's a simple structure you can use for any chatbot pitch:

Step	What to Write
A - Attention	Start with a bold question or problem
I - Interest	Show a cool solution or benefit
D - Desire	List how it helps or share a win
A - Action	Invite them to take the next step

Focus on how the offer helps, not just what it is

Keep things conversational—like texting a friend
